CHANGE THAT IS CHANGE

Have you heard the story about the country fella who took his family to the big city for the very first time? To say the least, he was utterly lost in the huge place with all of its strange sights and sounds. The biggest building he had ever been in was the country church building back home. He stopped in front of a multi-story hotel building, and took his son in with him to get some directions to their intended destination. They were standing in the lobby looking around for someone to ask when they spied a kind looking older gentleman with a cane. They started walking toward him. They drew back, though, when the wall opened up for him!! They watched in utter amazement as he stepped into a small room with no windows and the wall closed back around him. Numbers above the opening grew larger, and then smaller....the doors opened again. Out stepped a young man with a confident stride and a smile on his face. "Son, wait right here," said the country fella. "I'm going to get in that thing!"

Well....all of us wish that change could come so quickly and effortlessly. Giving the choice, all of us would rather loose twenty pounds by taking a pill every day than to deny myself extra helpings or deserts. New Years resolutions (or any other kind) fail because the change we resolve to bring about comes at a greater cost than we are willing to pay. Real change takes work....it also takes time. While reminding ourselves that there are "no quick fixes" we grow disappointed and disillusioned when the fix doesn't come quickly. We live in a generation of people who "know what they want and know when they want it....NOW!" Many young marrieds want everything their parents have that took a lifetime of hard work, savings, and sacrifice to accumulate. We want wisdom...and think that going to college will provide it. We want refinement....and think driving an expensive car will confer it. We want respect....and somehow think that I can find that by just "shouting" louder than everyone else. Living in huge house with a six figure income doesn't change sadness into happiness anymore than sitting in a church house confers spirituality. Those who have less scream at those who have more to "share the wealth", but are unwilling to work harder or smarter or to invest the time necessary to make things better for themselves.

All of that is said to remind us as Christians to not live under the delusion that real change spiritually can ever occur without work and time. Don't give up on yourselves or others as we seek to be changed into the image of Christ here at Dayton. That change doesn't happen in an elevator. It takes place in real life....over time....as we make this journey with one another and our Lord. Jesus said, "And so I tell you, keep on asking, and you will receive what you ask for. Keep on seeking, and you will find. Keep on knocking, and the door will be opened to you." Luke
